Gins! Gins!! Gins!!! THE subscriber would inform the public, that he has established an extensive Cotton Gin Manufactory in the town of Louisville, Winston county, Mis. Having spared no pains during the last six months in searching for the best materials, and having had much experience in the business, he feels confident he shall be able to give satisfaction to all who may patronise him. His gins will be made of Cast and German steel running on the best of boxing, and he will be able to furnish 100 Gins in time for the next cotton crop. He would invite the public in general to call at his Factory and examine for themselves. He would further state that he has lately removed from Georgia, Monroe county.

A meeting of the citizens of Neshoba county was held at the court-huse on the 8th inst. upon the subject of opening Pearl river from the mouth of Kentawky creek, in this county, to Lowbutchee, in Leake county, sufficient for navigation with keel and flat-boats, A. W. Davis, Esq. was called to the Chair, and Col. A. B. Wooldridge elected Secretary.

PUBLIC MEETING.

The president stated the object of the meeting; after which, the practicabilty of opening the river was discussed, and it was unanimously agreed that it could be done for a small sum, and that it should be done immediately.

Whereupon a committee of eight, consisting of E. R. Strickland, Samuel M. Hudspeth, Hardiman Greer, Thos. Flake, J. B. Kirtland, Samuel Wilson, James Elliott, and H. Simmons. were appointed to confer with other counties, draft a plan for clearing the river, circulate subscriptions and report at a general meeting, to be holden at Philadelphia, on the last Saturday of August; when, if a sufficient amount is subscribed, it is expected to let out the work. It is understood that Madison and Leake counties will meet us from the south, and then a complete channel will be open to New Orleans. A. W. DAVIS, Chm'n.

Extract of Letter from a friend at Jackson, dated

August 19th, 1838, "I was vesterday at the Mississippi Springs, where according to previous notice, there was meeting of the Democratic and State Rights parties. The meeting was organized before I got there; when I entered the room, Gen. Foote had the floor, and in his usual way, tried to break up the meeting in a riw. He was frequently called to order, when V. E. Howard Esq. rose and observed that the meeting had been called by Democrats and State Rights men, who were opposed to the election of H. Clay to the Presidency, observing at the same time that no gentleman would intrude himself on the party; he repeated this two or three times and finally observed that no one but a coward would. At this, Gen Foote, in the true John Bell style, rushed at Mr. H. The crowd was thick and no damage was done .-Gen. F. attempted to get the floor, when he was informe I by the chair that he could not speak in that meeting; that if he did not like the proceedings he could call another meeting and undo them. When Gen, F. found he could not break up the meeting as he did at Jackson last winter, he retired, followed by a crowd of tops shouting huzza! huzza!! and throwing their supaid for hats about their heads. In a few moments there appeared stuck about on the walls a notice that H. S. Foote would address the people at 4 o'clock; a few of the Democrats re-mained, but I did not. I understand he made Mr. Clay the subject of his harrangue."

Character .- Amongst the happiest and proudest posessions of man is his character-it is a wealth--it is a rank of itself. Like most trep-ures that are obtained less by circumstances an ourselves, character is a more felicitous repustion than glory. The wise man therefore depases not the opinion of the world-he estimates at its full value -he does not wantonly jeopardize his treasure of a good name-he does not rush from vanity alone, against the received sentiments of others-he does not hozard his costly jewel with unworthy combatants, and for a petty stake. He respects the legislation of decorum. If he be benevolent as well as wice, he ill remember that character affords him a thousand utilities-that it enables him better to forgive the ening and shelter the assailed. But that character is built on a lalse and shallow basis, which is formed, not from the dictates of our own breast but solely from the fear of censure. What is the essence and the life of character? Principle, integrity, independence !- or as one of our great old men hath it-"that inbread loyalty to virtue which can serve her without a livery. These are qualities that hang not upon any man's breath. They must be formed within ourselves-the must make ourselves-indissoluble and indistructable as the soul! If concious of these posessions, we trust tranquility to time and occasion to make them known, we may rest assured that our character, sooner, or later will establish itself. We cannot more easily defeat our own object than by a restless and fervered anxiety as to what will the world say of us. Except indeed, if we are tempted to unworthy compliances, with what our conscience disapproves, in order to please the fleeting, capricious countenance of the time.
